Washington, June 22.-After voting down several amendments today the senate decided by a vote of 44 to 25 to concur in the house amendments to the postal savings bank bill and thus took the last legislative step necessary to the establishment of a postal sav-ings bank system in the United States. The measure was included in the ad-ministration schedule and its passage marks another triumph for President

No Exceptional Interest Manifested. In accordance with the programme agreed upon yesterday the voting began at five o'clock and the bill was passed a quarter of an hour afterwards. There was a fairly large attendance of senators, but no exceptional interest was manifested in the programmes.

One Democratic Vote for the Bill.

Most of the insurgent republicans foined with the regulars in supporting the measure in the final action on it, but Senators Bristow, Cummins and La Follette refused to yield, and cast their ballots in the negative with the themocrats. Senator Chamberlain cast the only democratic vote for the bill.

Banner Year in University Gifts. The alumni were told by the university president that the past had been the banner year in university gifts and in alumni contributions, the former totalling $2,232,000 and the latformer totalling $2,232,000 and the latter a little over $150,000, these not including the Sloan laboratory and other gifts to the scientific school. He itemized the larger gifts which include that of Mrs. Sage of $650,000 to purchase Sachems woods. He said that "that monumental example of optimism, Secretary Stokes," five years ago had predicted that in four years five millions in endowments would come in lions in endowments would come in.
That faith was justified, as in four years four millions had come from the living and one million from bequests.
He believed also in Mr. Stokes' faith that in the next five years an additional ten millions would be given to the university. the university. Of the alumni gifts the class of 1885, academic and scien-tific, had given $52,000.

Told of Yale Ideals. Dr. Walcott of Smithsonian institute, who spoke, told of Yale ideals as he had come to realize them, paying a tribute to the late Prof. James Dwight Dana, the geologist. He said that the university ought to have a new natural history museum to take the place of Peabody museum, a department in which Yale has been outstripped.

Work of Yale Men in Far East. Bishop Partridge of Kioto, class of 'S0, spoke of the work of Yale men in the far east, and of their self-sacrifices, and in the cause of humanity and of the responsibilities of this nation who are striving to bring the peoples of the Orient to a plane of higher ideals.

The Value of University Training. James J. Hill was introduced as the youngest Yale son. Mr. Hadley said that two members of the family had won Yale degrees, three had achieved them and the last one has had a desoile. The fathers laid the foundations, he said but Marshall reared the structure.

The future of the nation will rest upon the courts, and free government will make its final stand upon the decisions of the United States supreme court, he said in conclusion.
